As expected, the new Verizon Treo 700W is in the testing phase of it's release. The FCC released a few documents that confirmed testing was completed.

It's expected the Treo 700 will pass, but this is necessary for the product to launch. As of now, there has not been an official release date other than Q1 of 2006. Most are expecting the new Verizon smart phone to make it's way to consumers by January.

Documents

released by the FCC are available on their site.
