

Treo Lennon and Nitro

Monday, 17 July 2006

Treo Lennon and Nitro

Palm is rumored to be releasing two new smartphones this fall. According to rumors, the Palm Treo Lennon and Treo Nitro will be available through Cingular Wireless as early as September. The antenna-less Treo smartphones could be the much talked about Treo Hollywood.

Treo Lennon and Nitro

Palm is rumored to be releasing two new smartphones this fall. According to rumors, the Palm Treo Lennon and Treo Nitro will be available through Cingular Wireless as early as September. The antenna-less Treo smartphones could be the much talked about Treo Hollywood.

Engadget has been reporting the roadmap for release as October. The Treo Lennon is rumored to be a GSM version of the 700 and will run Windows Mobile 5 - PocketPC. The Treo Nitro is said to run the Palm OS. The Treo Lennon is listed as having UMTS and Class 10 EDGE, a 1.3 megapixel digital camera and no official word on WiFi.

With all of these codenames being mentioned, it's sure going to be an exciting fall for the Treo platform. Lennon, Nitro and Hollywood.